Time in The Life of A Muslim

Excerpts from "Time in the Life of A Muslim" by Yusuf Qaradawi

On reading the Sunnah of our Prophet (pbuh), we find it acknowledging the value of time and confirming the responsibility of man towards it before God on the Day of Judgment. It is narrated by Mu'adh Ibn Jabal who said that the Prophet (pbuh) said,

"A servant of God will remain standing on the Day of Resurrection until he is asked about 4 things: his life and how he spent it, his youth and how he used it up, his property and how he acquired and spent it, and his knowledge and how he utilized it"

The Characteristics of Time

1. Time passes quickly

...When death arrives, all the years and ages man has lived suddenly turn his eyes into moments that have vanished in the flash of a second...

2. The time that passes can never return, nor can it be compensated for.

...Time is irreversible and this simply means that time cannot be compensated for. This was clearly the meaning in the words of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, who said, "At the beginning of every day a herald calls, 'O son of Adam, I am a new creation and I am a witness of all your deeds. So take provision from me because when I pass I never come back until the Day of Resurrection.'"

3. Time is the most precious thing that man possesses.

...All the previous characteristics of time make it the most valuable and precious thing a man owns.

Muslims have a duty to benefit from time, make use of free time, to hasten towards good deeds and organize it...
